

SETTING INTENTION IN LEARNING TAGALOG

INTRODUCTION:

Intentions are a powerful tool to let go of worries and fear. By setting an intention, you clear your mind, allowing greater focus-- and with focus comes better results. Whether you're just beginning your Tagalog journey or diving into a specific lesson, setting the right intention can make all the difference. Intention, in Tagalog, is adhikain.

If you can, write your intention in Tagalog. Here's an easy to follow procedure in setting your intention:

1

Identify your learning stage.

Check what applies to you:

I'm just starting my Tagalog learning journey.

I'm working on specific lesson or skill.

I'm refining what I already know and want to practice more.

2

Set your general intention.

What is your overall intention for learning Tagalog? Consider personal, professional, or cultural goals. Example: "I will embrace learning Tagalog to connect with my family's heritage."

ANG ADHIKAIN KO (MY INTENTION)

3

Write your specific intention.

What is your intention for today's lesson? Keep it simple and focused. Example: "I will master 10 new Tagalog verbs and use them in sentences."

4

Reflect and affirm.

- Why is this intention important to you?
- How will you feel once you achieve this intention?

Struggling to Construct a Proper Tagalog Sentence? You're Not Alone.

Have you ever felt frustrated trying to speak Tagalog—only to realize that while you know words, forming a clear and correct sentence feels impossible?

If you've tried popular language apps like Duolingo, you've probably noticed:

- ✗ It's easy to memorize random words but hard to string them together.
- ✗ Verb conjugation? A mess. You know the word, but is it past, present, or future?
- ✗ No cultural context. You're learning phrases that sound robotic—not how real Filipinos actually speak.

At Aralin World, We Bridge the Gap.

Our membership program is designed for learners who want to stop guessing and start speaking Tagalog naturally. We focus on the areas that apps miss—so you can express yourself clearly and correctly.
